SUMMARY

In 2008 for the first time I ran a web server from my home, serving a personal blog. Back then this lighted a passion for programming, servers and technology in general. Three years later I was already working in NRIC and I had to put on hold my excitement for IT.
In 2016, I decided that I need a change, so that is where life started for me as a software developer. Learning everything about how to develop, test and deliver software became an integral part of my life!
